Roosevelt Seeks To Hurry Walker Ouster Hearing

Threatens to Take Charge of Proceedings
FED UP, HE SAYS

Hurls Rebuke During Schurman Testimony

Executive Chamber, Albany, N. Y.—(P)—Irrked by John J. Curtin, counsel to Mayor Walker, Governor Roosevelt at today's session of the Walker ouster hearing declared he was "getting a little bit fed up" with arguments and threatened to "take charge" and speed up proceedings. Today is the fifth the hearing has been in progress.

Attempting to counteract the charge in the proceedings that the mayor made no effort to bring the missing accountant, Russell T. Sherwood, back for questioning, Curtin today brought out that Mr. Walker's assistance was not sought by the Hofstadter committee.

Jacob Gould Schurman, Jr., whose investigation of Walker's affairs laid the ground work for the ouster charges, told Governor Roosevelt that, to Governor Kerrigan, assistant to Walker, promised to produce Sherwood as a witness before the Hofstadter committee. Schurman formerly was assistant to Samuel Seabury, counsel to the committee.

Presses Schurman
The gubernatorial rebuke was delivered as Curtin was pressing Schurman, on transfers in accounts of Sherwood. Schurman conducted the examination of Walker's and Sherwood's bank accounts.

The discussion turned to the activities of James T. Ellis, accountant for the Seabury investigators.

"Mr. Curtin, there has been a great deal of objection by many persons and on my part, too, against long arguments on technical legal points," Mr. Roosevelt interrupted. "I am not bound by the rules that a supreme court justice is bound by."

"I am trying to get to the kernel of this matter. If you want to call Mr. Ellis, call him."

"May I say," Curtin replied, stepping from his counsel table to the space in front of the governor's table, "I have not transgressed upon any technicality. If your excellency had adhered to technical grounds none of it would have been in here."

Roosevelt waved Curtin down, exclaiming, "I'm getting a little bit fed up with these long arguments between counsel. I'll take charge of this hearing pretty soon."

"Don't talk any more," said Roosevelt, when Curtin attempted to answer.

Charge Split Fees
Governor Roosevelt turned to conclusion number 14 involving the charge the mayor permitted his brother, Dr. William Walker, to split fees with physicians handling city cases.

He did not question Walker on conclusion number 13—that the Children Barred From Joy Rides in Elevator

Racine — (P)—Youngsters who have been taking joy rides in the city hall elevator will have to seek entertainment somewhere else from now on.

The city council last night decided to restrict the number of rides in the city hall elevator. The measure and instructed the janitor to "keep the kids out."

A committee had reported that because of the joy riding activities the electric power bill for the elevator alone has recently been more than for the rest of the building.

Probe Crash Of Excursion Boat on River

748 Passengers, 33 Crew Members Aboard—Captain Averts Panic

Louisville, Ky.—(P)—An investigation by the local office of the United States inspector of steam vessels was under way today following a near-disaster last night when the excursion steamer City of Memphis struck a rock and almost sank in the Ohio river here.

A crowd of 748 excursionists from New Albany, Ind., and the steamer's crew of 33 were landed safely as the crippled craft limped to the Kentucky shore, her hull torn open and her stern half submerged.

Only the prompt action of the ship's officers averted a panic among the passengers, Capt. J. E. Gloosbrenner said. A. The steamer smashed her hull against a rock near a dam, the officers ordered the orchestra to keep playing and the callopo broke forth with a lively tune. The passengers, most of whom were playing cards or dancing at the time, were told there was no danger so long as they followed orders.

Lower Life Boats
Fearing the boat would be unable to make shore from the middle of the river, Capt. Gloosbrenner ordered the life boats launched and the passengers to put on life preservers. A battery of smaller craft and coast guard boats followed the steamer as she churned shoreward.

In the rush down the gangplank as the boat was safely moored, three girls were injured, one of them seriously. A youth leaped overboard and swam ashore.

The City of Memphis was returning to New Albany from Rose Island, a river resort, when the accident occurred. Few of the passengers were aware of what had happened until some of them saw water pouring over her lower deck and spread the word.

First reports to police were that the boat had caught fire and capsized. Newspaper offices were swamped with calls from anxious friends and relatives of those on board.

The City of Memphis, listed as owned by several Tennessee men, has been in the excursion business here all summer. Only last week she was inspected and pronounced in first class condition. Her pilot is Capt. Nick Durand of Louisville.

Lindberghs, Son Seek Seclusion
Friends Agreed That Baby Will Be Named After Grandfather

Englewood, N. J.—(P)—In an atmosphere of quiet and peace, the new son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh began his second day of life today.

In deference to the wishes of Col. Lindbergh, who said in a statement last night he desired as little public attention as possible centered on the baby born yesterday, the family was left in seclusion. No crowds assembled at the gate of the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, where the child was born.

Friends seemed agreed that the baby would probably be named after his famous grandfather, the late Senator Dwight Morrow. No statement was forthcoming, but the health of mother and child was believed to be good.

There was no official confirmation of a report that the Lindberghs planned to move soon to the mansion on Sourland mountain from which their first child, the late Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnapped.

In his statement last night Lindbergh said he and his wife "feel that our children have a right to grow up normally with other children."

"Continued publicity," he said, "will make this impossible."

May Take Stump
Rumors were circulated at Democratic headquarters today that James M. Cox was expecting to take the stump in the Roosevelt-Garner campaign. It also was indicated that John W. Davis was "favorable inclined" toward making speeches for the ticket.

Issue Orders to Open Highways in Farm Strike Zone
Sheriffs' Forces to Escort Trucks Over Picketed Roads

Sioux City, Iowa — (P)—Orders to break the blockade of picketing farmers in Sioux City's milk strike went out from county authorities today as the controversy apparently approached a crisis.

Statements from officials that the blockade would be broken were made following a deadlock in negotiations between the distributors and producers over the price to be paid for milk. The producers are asking $2.17 per hundred pounds, compared with $1.70 offered by the distributors.

Sheriff John A. Davenport of Sioux City called for 60 special deputies to enforce the anti-blockade order, while Sheriff G. N. Sioux of Union County, S. D., and Sheriff Ralph E. Rippey of Plymouth County, Iowa, also marshalled their forces to escort through the picket lines all trucks who have thus far refused to make the attempt in the face of determined opposition from the farmers.

Members of the Milk Producers association said their fight was not connected with the selling strike being waged by farmers in other parts of Iowa and nearby states but it was difficult to distinguish the movements since pickets have been barring the paths of all highway shipping.

Some pickets have informed the sheriffs that they will allow livestock trucks to enter the city but intend to continue their fight to bar all others. The authorities answered with quiet statements that the blockade would be broken and all trucks allowed to go through.

Spread Movement
Meanwhile at Des Moines representatives of midwestern states who attended a meeting to formulate plans for spreading the farm holiday movement of the National Farmers Holiday association returned to their homes prepared to encourage the strike.

E. E. Kennedy of Kankakee, Ill., set off on a trip to Colorado and Kansas to assist in organizing state holiday associations.

Officers of the association said they had received requests for information and telegrams asking for speakers from groups in Montana, Indiana, Colorado, Kansas and Oklahoma.

In North Dakota progress was reported in the move to stop selling wheat until the price reaches $1.00 a bushel although leaders there said they were not definitely linked with the Iowa strike.

E. H. Seubert, secretary of the South Dakota Farmers Union, at Yankton, yesterday denied statements made by E. N. Hammett of Farmington, S. D., at Des Moines that 40 South Dakota counties were ready to begin the strike. He said the union had no such plans and did not endorse the Iowa movement.

There were no developments in Minnesota's strike movement while Wisconsin's participation thus far has been limited to one encouraging telegram sent to the convention at Des Moines Monday. Missouri farmers have remained apathetic while eastern Nebraska farmers were watching developments in Iowa with interest.

Lidgerwood, N. D. — (P)—Dr. E. G. Sasse was called by his office yesterday to aid an unidentified boy found dying near there from a bullet wound.

When the doctor arrived at the scene, he found the body of his 9 year old son, Wallace. The lad apparently had accidentally shot himself while hunting with a target pistol. He died soon afterward.

Benton, Ky.—(P)—Fiding a prancing speed up and down the aisles and knocking over the pews as well as the preacher, Bobby Thompson, 20, broke up a church meeting here last night and got himself locked up in jail on a charge of drinking too freely.

Witnesses said Thompson rode his horse right through the door of the improvised church made from a barn, trotted through the aisles and dashed away. The church service was adjourned immediately and a posse caught Thompson a short distance away.

Woman Used as Scenery In Dells Resort Slaying

Kansas City, Kas.—(P)—A red-haired woman, who told police she accompanied four Chicago gangsters "as scenery" in an attempted hold-up which resulted in the slaying of Ole Hansen, 34, was held here today for "stunt" authorities.

Arrested last night as she was eating at a barbecue stand the girl gave her name as Mrs. Irene Smith Flanagan 22 of Chicago. In a statement, tumbled with under oath, she told police of the hurriedly changed plans to rob the Black Oak Inn, of which Hansen was the bartender, instead of the original objective, a money messenger at the Dells of Wisconsin, a resort on Lake Michigan.

She named her companions as Richard Riley, George Harper, James Grippando and John Paul White, all of Chicago.

Police informed the sheriff of Portage, Wis., of her arrest, and were told that he would come for the prisoner.

Officers who arrested the girl said they had been searching for her for several days. She said she came here from Chicago on a "stunt."

She told Capt. Stanley Beatty that the four lived in the neighborhood where she made her home with her mother and brother, and had known them only about a

Drag Ill-Fated German Training Ship to Port

Kiel, Germany.—(P)—The hulk of the naval training ship Niobe was dragged back to port today with the bodies of 69 cadets who perished when the ship foundered off the coast 22 days ago.

Like the Niobe of mythology, whose children went unburiied for 12 days, the hulk lay under water here this morning and divers hoped to reach the bodies and bring them ashore late today.

Parents of the lost youths have been gathering for two days, but they were forced to view the operations from the shores of Heikendorfer Bay, for the public was barred until the bodies have been recovered and identified, and the death list checked.

After the old training ship sank July 25 with all sails flying, whiffed over by a sudden, fierce squall, all the resources of the navy were

Fish Biting; Hoover Decides to Prolong Expedition on Bay

Washington — (P)—Fast biting, sportive fish tempted President Hoover into prolonging his Chesapeake Bay fishing trip today after arrangements had been made for his return to the White House.

The nose of the Sequoia, the commerce department inspection boat on which he is traveling, had already been pointed toward Annapolis where he planned to debark, when the President went out for a final session with the fish in the waters of the upper Chesapeake.

The bit well and his catch was the best of his trip.

Shortly afterward the White House was informed he would prolong his stay and probably would not reach Annapolis until late today. He will motor to the White House from Annapolis and continue to his Rapidan camp either tonight or early tomorrow.

Earlier he had planned to reach Washington about noon.

Guards Ready to Combat Strikers In Taylorville

Taylorville, Ill.—(P)—A woman occupant of an automobile was shot and wounded early today by sheriff's deputies guarding Christian highways against the threatened invasion of striking coal miners from downstate and Springfield.

The woman was Mrs. Clyde E. Mose, wife of an Edinburg miner. With their seven years old daughter they were returning from Springfield where Mose nightly attends a concession stand at an amusement park when the deputies attempted to stop their automobile and question them.

The officers fired and buckshot grazed the forehead and arms of Mrs. Mose, narrowly missing her husband and daughter.

Taylorville, Ill.—(P)—Christian-co's 1500 "home guards" promised "plenty of opposition" today if striking union coal miners from adjacent counties seek to carry out their announced intention of invading Taylorville. The invasion was scheduled for tomorrow.

The striking miners, dissatisfied with a new wage scale recently put into effect, and determined to picket mines here where other union miners are at work, made final plans at Springfield yesterday for the Taylorville invasion.

As they adjourned one of their leaders said: "Men come back Thursday prepared to stay two days. Don't bring any firearms; bring your fists. Bring cars and money, if you have any, but don't bring firearms, get that straight."

Protest to Governor
The dissenting miners also sent a committee to protest to Gov. Louis L. Ammons the action of Sheriff Charles Wienke of Christian-co in having his 1500 special deputy sheriffs blockade all highways leading into the county. The governor, however, was ill and unable to receive them.

Meanwhile Sheriff Wienke was augmenting his force of "home guards." Nearly every available man in the county was sworn in as a special deputy. Business and professional men, together with clerks, farmers and laborers, constitute the "home guard."

"Christian-co is ready," Sheriff Wienke said, "but it is not our fault. If they come there will be plenty of opposition."

Mayor Cud Wilkinson of Taylorville said Christian county miners had ratified the wage scale of $3 a day by a two to one vote. "They feel this entitled them to work if they want to and the rest of us are going to see that they are not molested."

Chicago Store Bombed In Milk Price Battle

Chicago.—(P)—Another bomb added today to the terrorism against the Meador-Morris dairy, near Chicago, was exploded today.

The store of Meador-Morris and its neighbors were hit by a bomb which exploded at 10:30 a. m. today.

The company has asked of state and federal officials to investigate their case and to "trust" operations in the territory, and is opposing their "low" price of milk. All the large dairies sell at 10 cents a quart. The company often has 40 acts of violence against their drivers, trucks and dairymen.

Government agents have referred the complaint to the attorney general in Washington.

President of Miners' Union Slain at Home

Benton, Ill.—(P)—Joe Colbert, president of local union No. 303, at Orient and chairman of the coal miners' protest meeting at Benton last Sunday, was killed today by one of three men who drove up to his home, called him to their car and then drove away after shooting him with a shotgun.

Authorities here said Colbert had actually fought the new $5 wage scale for coal diggers and that he had been spreading "communist ideas." A case charging Colbert with drunkenness was pending in Benton City court.

Legion Opposes Action Against Bonus Marchers

"Deplores" Ejection of Army From Washington

FAVORS REPEAL
Votes for Immediate Payment of Compensation

LaCrosse.—(P)—The Wisconsin department of the American legion today stated its opposition to the "deplores" the recent violent ejection of bonus marchers from Washington.

A resolution adopted after spirited debate, reads as follows:

"The fourteen annual convention of the American legion, department of Wisconsin, deplores that recent United States army troops were recently used at the national capital to abridge the constitutional rights of World War veterans to peacefully assemble there and to petition their government."

This resolution, presented by the resolutions committee, was adopted over one offered by Charles Viss of Oshkosh. The defeated Viss resolution stated:

"The fourteenth annual convention of the American legion deplores events occurring in connection with the recent visit of World War veterans at the national capital and respectfully requests that veterans of any service be granted their lawful right to petition congress at all times when such events are conducted in an orderly and legal manner."

Opposes Resolution
Opposing the adoption of the resolution which finally was carried, W. H. Markham of Horicon, pointed out that congress had adjourned before troops were summoned to evict the veterans. Consequently it cannot be held, he argued, that the veterans were petitioning congress. Calling of the troops, he said he believed, was justified.

Francis E. McGovern, former governor, countered this argument with the statement that any branch of "the government" at any time whenever congress was in or out of session was immaterial, he contended. The veterans, petitioning peacefully, were "forcibly ejected by their successors in the United States army," McGovern observed.

James H. McGillan of Green Bay, candidate for the office of state commander, urged support of the resolution sponsored by the committee.

For Modification
La Crosse.—(P)—The state convention of the American legion went on record today as favoring immediate modification of the Volstead act and repeal of the eighteenth amendment and immediate cash payment of adjusted compensation certificates.

A resolution asking for payment of the bonus with no reduction in interest charges was adopted as was a resolution calling for abolition of federal prohibition.

The delegates engaged this morning in a heated discussion of the election of the bonus army from Washington and the convention was expected to take a stand on the subject later in the day.

A report of the finance committee providing for a budget from which $500 had been cut was adopted. It was voted to continue at one dollar a year.

Massachusetts as the band commander was not held yesterday because of rain. The convention voted to award the state championship to the Milwaukee post band which held the title last year.

Expect Cox to Take Stump in Dem Campaign

Garner Returns to Washington After New York Conference

New York.—P—Expectation that James M. Cox will take the stump for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket was expressed today at Democratic headquarters.

Robert Jackson, chairman of the speakers bureau, who described the former governor of Ohio as "100 per cent in line," also said John W. Davis was favorably inclined toward making speeches for the ticket, but his activities depended on whether he can spare the time from his private affairs.

Meanwhile the question whether a third former Democratic candidate for the presidency, Alfred E. Smith, would take the stump remained a mystery.

Speaker John N. Garner went back to Washington last night after a round of conferences here and in Albany which culminated in a visit yesterday to Smith in his skyscraper office.

The conference lasted an hour and the vice presidential candidate came out smiling.

Advent of September Brings Fall Fishing

BY BERT CLAFLIN

With the advent of September the great army of tourists from other states is well on its way homeward from the lake region of northern Wisconsin. From then on the resident angler comes into his own, not that there is really any crowding by fishermen—the waters are too extensive for that—but it marks the time when the fall fishing begins.

The "bloom" will be gone from the lakes, such fish as the musky will have overcome the trouble with his teeth, the water will be cooling rapidly and a new activity becomes noticeable in nature. Then it is that fish of every species become assailed with an insatiable appetite. They will not almost anything that bears the least resemblance to natural prey.

Unlucky indeed is the hapless frog or wiggling meadow mouse that falls into the pool, or seeking a change of pasture, jumps boldly in. When that happens a tragedy of nature occurs immediately. There is a boiling of the water, a vicious lash of a curving tail or even a leap clear of the surface. And the result is always the same. The widening of the circles caused by the sudden rush feed to nothing. An appetite has been appeased at the expense of nature's great family.

And now is the time for the angler who would make a good catch to be abroad. He has but to show to the wily denizen of the deep something with action and the tables are easily turned. A glittering spoon, a red and white "plug," a crude imitation of fish food, almost anything that moves erratically in the water, is enough to bring the hoped for strike.

Fishing With "Plugs"

So far as I personally am concerned, "plug" fishing is not a new method of fishing. Many years ago when I was a boy on the Crawfish River in southern Wisconsin we made whistles from a willow branch. We pounded the bark until it loosened and readily came off. Then, when the whistle no longer "blew," we used the inside of our whistle for a bait with which to catch pickerel. A hook was wired on to the wood, a strip of red flannel attached to the thing and the fish bit it as though it were a live minnow.

From that day to this I have used artificial lures of various kinds. They are fully as efficient as live bait if you know when and how to use them. Wall-eyes will take them readily when the right kind is offered, and they will even hit wet flies. On one occasion I caught a beautiful string of these fish in Lake Koshong on a red and white streamer fly. They were on a bar at the southern end of the lake and they were hungry. The school because my fishing pal caught three or four with a live minnow while I was stringing my fly rod. But when I was ready I caught them as fast as I could get my fly down to them.

Farm Conference Ends at Shawano

Subjects for Rural Discussion Proposed by Leaders

BY W. F. WINSEY

Shawano.—The Cooperative Program Conference, the first one of the kind held in Wisconsin, adjourned Tuesday afternoon, after a two-day session. Fifty delegates from Greater Progressive Farmer's locals, Homemakers' locals, and P. T. A. locals, from Brown, Oconto, Calumet and Waupaca counties were present at the Tuesday conference. The meeting was planned by the College of Agriculture and sponsored by county agents G. F. Baumeister, Gustav A. Sell, J. F. Cavanaugh, and J. I. Etheridge. The conference differed from farm institutes by confining the invitations to delegates from farm organizations. The delegates are expected to carry reports of the conference back to the locals. Programs were not only suggested and discussed but were demonstrated as far as possible. Monday evening in one-act plays, instrumental and vocal music, and 4-H club work.

Cooperative marketing, taxation, and prevention of communicable diseases in rural communities, were proposed by the speakers Tuesday, as interesting and instructive subjects for discussion at meetings of farm organizations. The speakers suggested that these subjects should have a place on the programs during the year.

The principal speakers at the general session, Tuesday were: Henry H. Bakken, College of Agriculture, whose subject was Principles of Marketing Farm Products; Carl F. Wehrman, College of Agriculture, whose subject was How an Organization Can Study Taxation in Rural Areas; and Dr. R. L. Frisby, deputy state health officer, whose subject was the Control of Disease in Rural Communities Through Organization.

3 Carolina Mills Boost Wage Rates

Others Run Full Time on Building Additions To Factories

Charlotte, N. C.—At least three mills in the Carolinas have voluntarily increased wages, and others are running full time on building additions to their plants.

The Durham Hosiery Mills have ordered a blanket increase of 10 per cent in wages. Silk mills at Greensboro and Kernersville, with enough orders booked to run them until Oct. 1, have increased wages from 10 to 12 per cent.

In Rock Hill, S. C., six of the largest mills reported that 2,300 employees are working on a full night and day schedule.

With orders enough to keep it busy on full time for eight months, the High Shoals cotton mills at Lincolnton has reopened after running spasmodically for the last year.

Mills in the vicinity of Anderson, S. C., announced last week additional orders would enable them to operate full-time for several months.

Nazi Chief Flays Von Papen's Rule

Germany Headed for Destruction, Adolf Hitler Says

Munich, Germany.—P—The activity of the present German government under Chancellor Franz von Papen is "leading straight to chaos," Adolf Hitler, national socialist chief, said here yesterday.

The statement was Hitler's first personal utterance since his dramatic refusal last Saturday to enter the cabinet in a secondary role.

"My followers would never have understood it if I had accepted the compromise suggested by President Von Hindenburg," he said. The Nazi leader said his followers would continue to oppose the government.

"As to the fate of the Von Papen cabinet," he added, "that is something about which the chancellor himself had better be asked. We know how we are going to continue the fight. We are willing to support any government as long as the national movement is helped and the Marxist (communist) movement is weakened. When the government ceases to help the national cause we oppose it sharply."

Refuses Compromise

"I'll never sell my movement for a mess of pottage," Hitler snapped. "On matters of principle there can be no compromise. One cannot expect heroism from a people if the leaders make 'bearable' compromises."

"My lieutenants would always forgive me if I made a mistake but never if I would renounce my principles. Likewise the members of my party, who have heard a hundred times from my mouth that I never would compromise and would be always ready to sacrifice my life for our principles, would never have understood my acceptance of chancellor Von Papen's proposal."

"As throngs of my followers crowded around my car when I left Berlin I heard two utterances which deserved to be written as mottoes on all our banners. They were: 'Don't Give In' and 'Remain Firm!'"

The chancellorship, the Nazi chieftain said, was his right in view of the sensational strength of his movement, demonstrated in the recent election.

More Upland Game Now Available to Badger Sportsmen

Open Season on Bobwhite Quail Declared in Two Counties

Madison.—P—Wisconsin sportsmen will be able to hunt more species of upland game in a greater number of counties as a result of action of the state conservation commission in establishing the upland bird seasons for 1932.

An open season on bobwhite quail—the first in many years—has been declared. This is an experimental season to be in effect in Crawford and Richland-co. for two and a half days from noon Oct. 1 to 5 p. m., Oct. 3.

There also will be an open season on a new Wisconsin game bird, Hungarian partridge, in Kenosha, Racine and Walworth-co. during the same period, Oct. 1-3.

The conservation commission said it intends to carry on an intensive winter feeding of quail in Crawford and Richland-co.

The commission said there are probably more quail in Wisconsin now than there have been at any time in the last 35 years and it is hoped by a carefully regulated open season to arouse the interest of sportsmen and farmers to the point where they will actively engage in restoring quail cover and providing feed during the fall, winter and early spring months.

Season on Grouse

In a wide number of counties there will be open seasons on ruffed grouse, prairie chicken and sharp-tailed grouse from noon Oct. 1 to 5 p. m., Oct. 6 and an open season on pheasant cocks from noon Oct. 1 to sunset Oct. 3.

Due to conflicting federal and state laws no woodcock season was recommended for Wisconsin this year.

The commission pointed out that the farmer is the local custodian of all game and that continued upland game shooting will depend primarily on his efforts in providing food, cover and enforcement.

"The commission urged all sportsmen to cooperate with farmers in every way they can to make it worth the farmers' while to continue his interest in providing these essentials for game bird management," a statement said.

"Most farmers who have at this time a surplus of game birds on their land are willing that the surplus be hunted. And sportsmen are urged to play square with the farmer to continue his interest."

The open season, species of upland game birds which may be hunted, the counties in which they may be hunted, the time and the bag limits are:

Pseudo Husband Always Helpful, "Wife" Declares

Fischer Helped With Dishes and Bought Candy and Flowers

Chicago.—As a pseudo husband, Arthur L. Fischer was a grand success. The girl he tricked into a mock marriage ceremony so informed the police yesterday. The 25 year old had check artist and bigamist, held by Oak Park police for prosecution on the latter charge, never omitted flowers and candy and always helped her with the dishes, Miss Lillian Koehl of 1010 Pleasant street, Oak Park, recalled sorrowfully.

Believing herself married to Fischer, Miss Koehl was found sharing an apartment with him at 114 South Maple avenue on Monday when he was arrested for writing a bad check for $50. Lieut. Harry Wilson, chief of detectives in Oak Park, who had taken Fischer into custody before on a similar complaint, had a good memory for faces and recalled that this was not the wife he had encountered previously. He didn't believe his prisoner when he said "She died," and the records justified his incredulity.

Faints When Told

Miss Koehl, who knew her "husband" as Harry L. Fischer, and thought he was on the Oak Park police force, fainted when she was informed that he had been married twice before, once bigamously. His legal wife is said to be Mrs. Margaret Hobbs Fischer of Appleton, Wis.

As she signed a complaint against him in the Oak Park station, Miss Koehl, member of a pioneer family of the suburb, related how the glib poseur had hoaxed her. They met three months ago when her car broke down. He was passing and offered to help her. He towed the car to a garage he told her he owned, and had it repaired. A month later their banns were published in St. Edmund Roman Catholic church, to which she belongs. She gave up a position in the Central Republic bank.

One day Fischer informed her he had obtained permission from her parish priest to be married on the south side of Chicago, and they made the trip to a church "near 19th street" which she cannot now identify. It was closed so they went to a nearby house which he said was the rectory, and went through a purported marriage ceremony by a man in clerical dress, whom Fischer addressed as "Father Casey, Miss Koehl said.

She turned over to Fischer $300 in cash and her automobile which he sold, pocketing the proceeds. They had occupied the apartment at 114 South Maple for about two months. Miss Koehl indicated that she would not remain in Oak Park when the case is completed.

Bonds of $20,000

Six feet tall and prepossessing of appearance, Fischer was brought before Police Magistrate Martin McGrath yesterday. His bonds were set at $20,000 and he was taken to the county jail when the case was continued to Aug. 23.

Miss Koehl, Mrs. Mary Privit, a divorcee who was his bigamous wife, and possibly his legal wife will testify against him. Other witnesses who may be called are Miss Dortha Hefel, a waitress who had refused his proposal of marriage, and a Detroit girl who cashed a bad check for him for $100.

"I feel sorry for my two wives, but I don't feel sorry for myself," smiled the confidence man as he was led away. "I never went through any kind of marriage with Miss Koehl."

Aid Sought for Shawano Farmers

County Agent Hopes to Place That Section in Drouth Area

BY W. F. WINSEY

Shawano—On account of an extreme shortage of hay, corn, small grain, and pasture in the northern and western part of Shawano county, County Agent G. F. Baumeister is making a strenuous effort to have that section placed in the drouth area of the United States and to get government aid for the farmers.

"If farmers in the western part of Shawano county do not get aid from the government they will lose their farms and go on the county," said the county agent. "They will need 15,000 tons of hay to carry their cattle through the winter. Many of them are now practically giving away their cattle because they have no pasture nor hay."

In an interview with several farmers in the drouth area of the county, the writer discovered that they threshed no grain, have no corn, hay nor pasture, and are cutting brush and trees to feed their animals. One of these farmers sold three cows that he could not feed for $15. Most of the hungry cows are picked up at prices ranging from $10 to $15, however.

In his efforts to obtain help for the drouth stricken farmers, the county agent sent out a questionnaire to an officer in each of the drouth townships. The first information he desired was the real conditions and the second recommendation.

Urges Proper Policing of Waters to Protect Fish

BY BERT CLAFLIN

The Wisconsin Conservation commission is making heroic efforts to restock our waters. They are hatching and planting many millions of game fish in our lakes and streams every year, but they are not properly policing those waters to any alarming extent. There is every reason to believe that the fish they take during the open seasons for fishing with hook and line is replaced even speedily by nature's methods.

It is a well known and deplorable fact that poachers are netting our streams for trout and bootlegging them in restaurants and other places in the cities. And they dynamite the streams. On one occasion the sheriff of Laroc County, a few miles west of Appleton, shot a few poachers while they were dynamiting the stream. That same day the sheriff's party was out on the lake and they had a business man that they had come to town with a top of a fish. It was a dollar a piece.

Not only are the poachers dynamiting the streams but they are on star waters as Calton Falls Lake and with a battery of can-poles, using live minnows for bait and they catch the northern pike without regard to any bag limit. I am not talking from hearsay. I have seen just those conditions. Is any attempt made to correct those conditions? If so, I have not seen it and I have made many trips to these waters during the season.

Disregard All Laws

There is no use camouflaging the situation. Those conditions exist as stated. Great sums of money are spent yearly by the state to propagate fish for the pleasure and natives who know better than to regard all laws and decency. Some of this money should be used for patrolling the game law waters. If that were done they would require much less planting.

Equally as destructive is the winter ice fishing which is allowed to help the unemployed. What a sacrifice to get votes. And yet the state conservation money is to be used under control of the police and a silly statement is made. We do know better, but we seem unable to take it away from them.

It was done in Persimmon Lake that day and a good example of the law of the land. A good game law officer was a hunter. He had a right to be in the lake and he had the right to be there. He was a hunter and he was a game law officer. He was a hunter and he was a game law officer. He was a hunter and he was a game law officer.

Building permits totalling $29,835 were issued last week by John N. Weiland, building inspector. The week before permits aggregated only $3,335. Last week's large total included permits for seven new residences, which is only two less than the number of residences built during the entire month of July.

Garner Speech Lends Fire to Dem Campaign

Roosevelt Followers Say Speaker Is Entitled To Smith Support

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
New York—Speaker Garner's visit to New York and his declaration that he still thinks Al Smith would make a great president made varying impressions here. The supporters of the former governor say that the Texan had a chance by holding the Texas and California vote to give Smith a chance at the presidency this time. The friends of governor Roosevelt say the speaker clearly showed that he is not to be classed with those who helped Texas to go Republican in 1928 and that he is deserving of the Smith support this time.

Just why the Democratic strategists brought up the subject of Garner and Smith is somewhat of a mystery, though it is known that ever since the convention the Republicans have been pointing out in Smith strongholds that Garner wouldn't even talk on the telephone to Smith on the day the latter tried to prevent the Texas-California bolt to Roosevelt. From this story has grown a whispering campaign that Garner was against Smith in 1928, which isn't true.

The speaker's frank statement that he heard he was a handicap to the Roosevelt candidacy in the east is typical of his direct way of meeting barriers in politics.

Real Campaigner
He will campaign in the east and show his personality to the folks in his own way. Garner is a campaigner of real power and while the conservatives may call him a radical and poke jibes at his homespun ways, still those who know the speaker best think he can draw big crowds on the stump and win friends for the ticket.

It is known that there are some Democratic leaders who think Garner ought to speak in the west rather than the east and that the speeches he has already made have alienated many conservatives from Roosevelt. The Republicans are anxious to pick a fight with Garner on the legislation which he put through the house and which was vetoed by the president, and they believe they can engage in a controversy on economy with him to their own advantage.

It is a serious question whether the Roosevelt leaders will wish to accord to the vice presidential nominee so much of the stage or whether they will take a leaf out of the Republican book and let Garner go along in the innocuous way by which Vice President Curtis has learned to subordinate himself.

The next big event in the campaign is expected to be the Roosevelt speech in Columbus, which comes about the same time that President Hoover will be addressing the National Business conference he has summoned. Thus two shows of the rival candidates will in a measure be competing with each other once more.

UNCLE SAM'S NEW TAXES WHERE THEY HIT YOU —AND HOW!

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of 20 special stories explaining the new federal taxes.

BY ROBERT TALLEY
In the form of new taxes on automobiles, radios, candy, chewing gum, movies, gasoline and countless other items millions upon millions of dollars are being collected from the American public this year.

But the worst is yet to come—Next March 15, when income taxes for 1932 become payable, the nation's income taxpayers will find $178,000,000 added to their bill.

The old law put the normal tax on individuals at 1 1/2 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income in excess of the credits allowed; three per cent on the next $4,000 and five per cent on the remainder. Surtaxes began on incomes in excess of $10,000, and at one per cent.

The 1932 law makes the income tax rate four per cent on the first $4,000 of net income, eight per cent on the remainder and places a graduated surtax beginning at one per cent on amounts above $9,000.

Exemptions are reduced from $3,500 to $2,500 in the case of married persons and from $1,500 to $1,000 in the case of single persons, thus further increasing the amount of the tax.

Here is the net effect on the tax of a married person (or the head of a family) with no dependents.

Net Income	Old Tax	1932 Tax
$3000	None	$20.00
$4000	$7.50	60.00
$5000	22.50	100.00

Here are the comparative figures for an unmarried man with no dependents:

Net Income	Old Tax	1932 Tax
$1500	None	$20.00
$2000	$7.50	40.00
$3000	22.50	80.00
$4000	37.50	120.00
$5000	52.50	160.00

The exemption for dependents (children, dependent relatives, etc.) remains unchanged at $400 each.

Last year there was a special 25 per cent reduction in the tax on earned income. The new law abolishes that reduction.

The rich will pay vastly more taxes too. Starting at one per cent on net incomes over $6000, surtaxes under the new law rise gradually to a maximum of 55 per cent (as compared to a maximum of 20 per cent last year) on incomes of over $1,000,000. Thus, a man with a million dollar income this year will pay $571,000 as against less than half that much last year.

President Hoover recently cut $15,000 off his own $75,000 salary, now legally exempt from income tax. But the 1932 law says that the salaries of presidents and federal judges who take office after its enactment shall be subject to the tax. Beginning next March 4, the tax on the president's salary will be approximately $18,000 a year.

The federal tax on corporations is increased from 12 per cent to 13 1/2 per cent, or 14 1/2 per cent in the case of corporations filing consolidated returns for affiliates. These two increases and certain eliminated exemptions are expected to produce $41,000,000 in new revenue.

BOOMERANG

Republican newspapers of the partisan stripe were greatly elated because of the pendency before Governor Roosevelt of the charges against Mayor Walker. They thought that if Governor Roosevelt decided against Mr. Walker he would alienate the mayor's strong backing in New York City, lose the state, and possibly through that loss, the nation. And they reasoned that if the governor upheld the mayor he would be greatly weakened throughout the rest of the country, always suspicious and generally dissatisfied with politics in our big cities.

It is that sort of reasoning made by men who figure mistakenly that others act merely to their own selfish advantage that often gives the strictly honest and high-minded man in public office, the opportunity of a lifetime.

It is unthinkable that Governor Roosevelt would concern himself about consequences.

There are a great many questions involved covering a multitude of charges, some that may be true but are flimsy because based upon suspicion, others that appear to take on more ominous tints.

In the trial the governor occupies a judicial position, as much so as a justice of the supreme court at Washington.

The New York constitution gives the governor the right to remove officials "for cause." It stops there.

What is meant by "cause"? Certainly anything appertaining to corruption in office, but opponents of Mayor Walker are attempting to construe the word "cause" by stretching it to the snapping point.

Governor Roosevelt removed Sheriff Farley of New York because he had an enormous bank account which he could not explain. The sheriff had used safety deposit boxes to carry big sums of money. The governor declared that it was the duty of every public official, when requested, to make a reasonable explanation showing an honest source for his property.

Mr. Walker too, has amassed a fortune but through no surreptitious channels. He received nearly $300,000 from Paul Block, the owner of a string of metropolitan newspapers, who bought and sold stocks for him. But Mr. Block never sought public favors, asked no franchises, craved no assistance from the mayor. Despite the derision aimed at him for claiming to have been actuated only by friendly motives in assisting the mayor to affluence, there is no evidence to the contrary, and his claim may be true. Such things have happened before.

"Presents" like those made by Mr. Sinclair to Secretary Fall plus "services" like those rendered by Secretary Fall to Mr. Sinclair make a perfect case of corruption but there must be both the "presents" and the "services."

What shall we say and what shall the public attitude be towards public servants who take gifts, even made from pure motives, and from those who have no favors to ask?

Shall Governor Roosevelt rule that the acceptance of such a gift is a "cause" for removal? If so a public official should refuse bequests in wills unless made by some close relative, and if the latter, how close?

The people have a right to look with grave suspicion upon any public official who, through his office, becomes greatly enriched, even though the enrichment arrive by means of a gift given from pure motives, but if the people wish to retain such an official and accept his explanation of the gift, is not that their business? It would seem so.

The trial has put the spotlight upon Governor Roosevelt but it has not put the governor "on the spot." He has handled it like a veteran. His cross-examination has been as keen as the edge of a razor cutting away all surplus, empty verbiage, and going straight to the important facts.

Whatever the outcome, Governor Roosevelt's presidential stock will probably be enhanced because he has the opportunity of showing to the nation the courageous course that it always pursued by a resolute public official bent upon sustaining the truth and not giving a snap of his fingers who likes it or why.

WISCONSIN PRODUCTS WEEK

Wisconsin, proud of the diversification and quality of its products, has set aside the week of Sept. 25 to Oct. 1 to properly display them so the people of our state and of the nation will the more generally appreciate its facilities and resources. Wisconsin Products Week, the name attached to this state-wide display of Wisconsin products, is sponsored by the Wisconsin Chamber of Commerce and supported heartily by the Wisconsin Daily Newspaper League.

No exhibition of Wisconsin products would be complete, of course, without representation from the tremendous diversification that makes up Appleton's industry. Few cities in Wisconsin, and certainly none of comparable size, manufacture such a large variety of products as are turned out by the factories of Appleton and a display of Wisconsin products must frequently call attention to this city's contributions.

It is well for the city and the state occasionally to be reminded of the good things they possess, especially in these difficult times when men are prone to dwell upon their troubles and forget their blessings. We in Appleton, despite strenuous difficulties, are in a much more fortunate position than many another city in this country and our state as a whole probably has not suffered as severely nor as long as some other commonwealths. It may be argued that this very diversification of products is one of the reasons for this, and if it is it is just another reason why Wisconsin should be proud. The exhibition should go a long way toward increasing our faith in our home state and to encourage us to carry on along the same lines that have resulted in our present greatness.

DYNAMITE AT A "SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC"

Most people have not forgotten the name of Royal C. Johnson, congressman, of South Dakota. When war clouds gathered in 1917 he resigned his seat in that body to enter the army at a dollar a day. He was wounded in action and decorated for valor. He is a real, regular but unpretentious American.

In an address before the American Legion at LaCrosse he developed some things worthy of public attention. They should be remembered, particularly, when we listen to Senator Blaine tell about the peacefulness of the bonus army, just as quiet, you know, "as a Sunday school picnic."

Congressman Johnson said:

"I can prove there was dynamite and caps to explode it, arms and ammunition, in the bonus camp at one time and it will be established at the proper time and place. Senators and congressmen who want congressional investigations will have it proven to them."

But Mr. Johnson went further and he pointed an accusing finger right in the proper direction when he declared:

"The men responsible for the deaths are not some of the recent service men with this bonus army, but the senators, congressmen and others who incited and encouraged it, when, if they knew anything, they knew congress was not going to pass the full payment of the adjusted service certificates."

"It is time someone punctured the bellyhump initiated by sentimentalists. Sob sister writers, and papers, which are deliberately trying to make trouble for the administration, regardless of its effect upon the government of the United States, would be more careful if they knew as I know that two bunches of dynamite and caps with guns and ammunition were found in the bonus camp. With the facts before him the president could do nothing else but call out the troops."

Bad judgment as it was to encourage these men originally to come to Washington, mistaken as was the notion, particularly among men in public life, that an attempt should be made to jam and crowd legislation through by the growing intimidation of great numbers, the offense is slight in comparison to the offense committed by those members of our congress who, after the senate had beaten the bill for immediate payment of the bonus, encouraged, incited and inflamed members of the bonus army to continue to stay on at Washington in the effort to throttle the ordinary and peaceful processes of government.

That, in a public servant, approaches the unforgivable.

AN ALMOYNY VICTIM
A veteran captain of the Chicago fire department, retired, died the other day in a hospital shortly after his release from jail, where he had been lodged for failure to pay alimony to a woman he had married in his later years. He had been asked to refuse to pay over his pension, but that cost him his liberty, and his physician said that the jail diet, in his invalid condition, apparently cost him some years of life.

The marriage was evidently an old man's mistake and the administration of alimony law made it an additionally serious one for him. The first consequence was an unhappy home and the second an implacable marital responsibility which brought a life of usefulness to a dismal close in jail. Few alimony cases are more obviously unpleasant to the sense of justice.

It is nature, for such a law to have such consequences. There is back of it a medieval assumption that the woman is property and that the man is responsible for her upkeep regardless of circumstances and sometimes regardless even of her conduct. It is the further assumption that the man who has this ball and chain clamped on him and can't or won't carry it is an enemy of society and is properly jailed as if he were a criminal. All this ignores every other theory which has been worked out in the modern status of woman.—Chicago Tribune.

ONE OF the most pleasant things about this otherwise not-so-good summer is the fact that the weatherman has been a comparatively good gent . . . true, he donated some hot weather, but not like last year point being, folks, that the hounds who come smirking up to you and ask "Is it hot enough for you?" when the weather is particularly trying, haven't had so much of a chance . . . and, somehow, the others who tell you that it'll be a nice day if it doesn't rain are somewhat surprisingly in the minority this season . . . maybe the world is improving . . . the trouble with people who use expressions like that is the fact that because they once got a laugh out of 'em they think that they'll always work . . .

"Those Were the Days"

His folks had warned him many times About the swimming hole. Which never, in the years gone by, Had failed to take its toll. But like most boys, he heeded not The wisdom of his dad, He joined the gang and went along. Of course he got in bad. For, when he stripped his clothing off And laid it on the strand, The older boys filled up his pants With gravel and wet sand. "Chaw beet," he heard the culprits shout, "Your pants are in a knot." And did he have a time with them? Oh boy, the sun was hot. He hung around till darkness came. And then, for home he tore. He hadn't bettered things a bit— His dad was at the door. "Come in my son," the old man said. "I'm glad to see you're back. And most of all it tickles me To see that pants you lack. Your ma and I have cried all day, You've made us both feel sad. We thought, of course, that you had drowned, I fear you'll wish you had." —Weary Gleaner.

THE FARM HAND

I watched him in the blazing field, Harrowing for September's yield, A rugged lad in denim jeans, A subject fit for pastoral scenes, Which would have caught the eager eye Or any artist passing by.

No mercy showed the blazing sun. I watched the heat waves roll and run Across the land, baked hard and brown, And wondered if fine folks in town, Who smile above their evening's bread, Have any notion how they're fed.

So white and delicate and fair It comes to table everywhere That only farming people know That suffering brings the wheat to grow, And only country boys can tell The toil that makes to soil do well.

Next winter when I sit to dine Where silverware and glasses shine And bread is passed, in fancy I Will see, beneath a cloudless sky, That boy enduring cruel heat All day within a field of wheat.

CHANGING STYLES

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

EVERY BREATH HAS ITS ODOR

In an earlier talk about breath odor we explained how reverse peristalsis, from one cause or another, produces unpleasant breath, and we mentioned that various common wholesome articles of diet impart their special odors to the breath, and a number of medicines commonly incorporated in popular nostrums give the breath a peculiar odor.

In the course of certain kinds of sickness, acute fevers as well as chronic diseases, the patient's breath may have an odor so characteristic that the experienced physician can almost make the diagnosis from the odor.

Tartar deposits on the teeth, septic gums and dental cavities are familiar causes of foul breath. Accumulation of cheesy masses in the crypts of the tonsils may give an unpleasant odor to the breath.

The bad breath of one who has chronic atrophic rhinitis is due to decomposition of excretions retained in the nasal passages. Candy sugar, a heaping teaspoonful dissolved in a teacup of warm water, is a good remedy to spray in the nose two or three times daily for this condition.

It should be obvious to any intelligent person that foul breath cannot be remedied with a mere mouthwash, gargle or other makeshift. The source of the odor must be determined and the condition, if remediable, given proper treatment.

In these two talks I have not attempted to name all the causes which may be responsible for bad breath, but rather have sought to show the futility of trying to remedy the condition with some "antiseptic" or other cure all.

Persons who have chronic arsenic poisoning may have a peculiar garlicy odor of the breath. Chronic arsenic poisoning is more common nowadays than formerly, owing to frequent occupational exposure.

A mouth wash or gargle of common salt, heaping teaspoonful in pint of water, or a solution of boric acid in water, heaping teaspoonful in the pint, or a solution of iodine in water, say five drops of the brown tincture of iodine (old spelling iodine) in a glassful of water, is as effective as any antiseptic remedy can be against any condition which may produce unpleasant breath odor. If one prefers to flavor or such mouth wash or gargle with one aromatic or another, very well, but that is not a question of hygiene.

In any case, if there is real friendship, one friend need not hesitate to tell the other if there is any extraordinary odor about the breath.

While there is no specific remedy for foul breath, the fact remains that the cause of the odor can be determined by proper examination by the physician in every instance and with rare exceptions the trouble is readily remedied when the physician has made his diagnosis.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Infection in Ear

I noticed your advice to wear loose packing of lamb's wool when one enters a swimming pool. I have worked at a large pool for eight seasons. One does not have to go into a swimming pool to get this ear trouble. If you get water in your ear anywhere and do not get it out right away, trouble will ensue. So I think your answer is not far from (M. L. C.)

Answer—It is not the water but the infection in the water which must be excluded from the ear. No swimming pool patronized by many swimmers can long remain unpolluted. No method of disinfection can make a swimming pool entirely safe. Therefore it is wise for those who swim in pools to keep the water out of nose and ears as much as possible.

Infantile Paralysis

I have a baby just a year and a half old. I have heard this is the time of the year for infantile paralysis. Can you suggest any safeguard? What are the first symptoms? (Mrs. L. L. P.)

Seen And Heard 'In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York — This town is filled with rebellious individuals who take the aggressive alone against conditions that displease them.

Because they tread on such risky ground that others won't follow them, or because they believe there is greater glory in monopolizing the spotlight alone, they do not become aligned with organized movements.

Not many of these solitary rebels have supplied more diverting copy than Bernard Guilbert Guernsey, the irrepressible foe of book censors and whatever else he takes a notion he doesn't like.

Guernsey has been involved in so many sensational incidents that one of his sound talents sometimes is forgotten. He is one of the most authoritative translators of Russian in this country. No less a person than Harry Hansen once wrote that "Guernsey is the most amazing translator I have ever met."

He was born in Russia, and came to this country about 25 years ago in his teens, to master English. For a while he knocked about the states and got experience in the advertising game and as a newspaper man in Pittsburgh.

For the past 10 years Guernsey has been publishing and selling books under the pseudonym of "The Wild of Loneliness" was under fire in New York, and monitors of morality were going about, "advising" booksellers that they had better take the copies out of their windows.

Some of Guernsey's run-ins with disappointed censors have been highly amusing. There was the time, for instance, when "The Wild of Loneliness" was under fire in New York, and monitors of morality were going about, "advising" booksellers that they had better take the copies out of their windows.

Guernsey sold out a consignment of the books and was expecting a new order to be filled momentarily. In the meantime, he found a jacket off of the Radcliffe Hall novel and put it on a cook book, which he displayed in his window as a dummy.

When a browsing agent dropped in, Guernsey insisted that he did not have the novel on display; in fact, had no copies on the premises. The intruder grabbed the dummy out of the window.

"What's this?" he demanded. "Do you think I'm blind?"

Just then the jacket fell off the cook book, and the chagrined reformer left the shop.

Sumner Vs. Guernsey

Guernsey at the present time stands charged with criminal libel, by John S. Sumner, secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice.

Sumner professed to see something personal in a lampoon against one "John S. Smutrat," in a paper published by Guernsey. But the publisher maintains that the cartoon and verse beneath it applied to censors in general—no one in particular.

The charge awaits disposal by the grand jury.

Guernsey appears to be a mild tempered little man. He is plump, with small twisted mustache, black cropped hair and eyes that peer wisely through his specs. He discusses his enterprise with considerable zest and there is a salty tang to his wit.

FRENCH MAKE GA.

On Aug. 17, 1918, French troops penetrated German positions north of Autrech to a depth of more than a mile on a three-mile front in bitter fighting.

Americans in Lorraine stormed the village of Fraipelle after heavy artillery preparation.

British and Canadian forces continued their smashing tactics in Picardy and made several important gains.

Pressure on the German army on the western front was extremely heavy and the German high command was hard put to find reserves to replace the troops worn out by weeks of continuous battle.

Allied commanders were in better position, replacing tired units with fresh American divisions.

The real purpose of vacations is to give workers change, a physician says. The way it usually works out, though, the vacationist gets back without change of any kind.

An employer says that labor won't be satisfied with the five-day week. What the workers will eventually ask for is the five-day week-end.

Washington.—The one hundred and twentieth anniversary of the historic conflict in which the United States frigate Constitution earned the name "Old Ironsides" will be celebrated next Friday with a colorful unfurling of flags.

At 5:05 p. m. the banners will flutter to the breeze from the ship exactly as they did during the war of 1812 when she answered the guns of the British frigate Guerriere, off Grand Banks, Newfoundland. That engagement lasted 40 minutes, ending with the British ship a wreck and her crew of 311 prisoners.

On the deck of Old Ironsides during the observance will be exhibited the colors flown in the sea battle—the National Ensign of 15 stars and 15 stripes and the Union Jack carrying 15 stars.

Seek Writ to Release Man From Holdup Trial

Duluth, Minn. — (AP) — District Judge E. J. Kenny announced he would decide today whether Harold W. Ross, 31, of Duluth, is to stand trial in Barron-co Wis., for the hold-up July 15 of the bank of Cameron, Wis.

At a hearing conducted by Judge Kenny, Ross sought release on a writ of habeas corpus alleging that he was at home at the time of the robbery.

Lloyd Prill, Cameron constable who killed Emmett Jones, 27, Duluth, declared he was positive Ross was the man he saw running from the bank and with whom he exchanged shots after he killed Jones. S. H. Krantz, assistant cashier, also identified Ross. A dozen witnesses took the stand in an effort to prove Ross was in Duluth during the hold-up.

Miss Ruth Luebecke is the delegate with Miss Helen Huebner as alternate, to the annual Sunday School and Christian Endeavor convention, which will convene Thursday, Aug. 25 at Forest Junction.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON
"A Good Man's Love"

If anyone tells you that the maidens of the Victorian era lived on a higher moral plane than those of today, you might buy a copy of E. M. Delafield's new novel, "A Good Man's Love," and refresh yourself by discovering that it just isn't so.

This novel examines the career of an upper class English girl at the end of the Victorian era, and the author concludes:

That a girl of that class and time thought of nothing at all, from the moment she made her debut, but how to get a man.

She never met a man without wondering if she might not entice him into matrimony. Every act of her life was designed with that end in view. Sheltered she may have been; innocent of constant thoughts about the opposite sex she certainly was not.

The heroine of this book has a dismal time of it. She gets one youth on the hook but has to discard him because he is too poor. Then she falls in love with an army officer; but because she indulges in a little mild necking with him her good name vanishes, and by the time she gets it back both he and her chances of catching an eligible young man are gone. In the end, after a decade of worrying she finally goes to the altar with a decrepit and stupid old fossil; but she goes gladly, because, as her mother explains, a woman's life can only begin after her marriage. "A Good Man's Love" is a wise and ironic novel. Published by Harpers at $2.50, it is the August choice of the Book League of America.

The Faithful Cheat

BY RUBY M. AYRES

SYNOPSIS: Sondra Merriman's brother-in-law, Ben, tells her she must leave his home when her sister Flora runs away from Ben. Sondra has no future plans. She hopes that Mark Merriman, to whom she is secretly married, will make his fortune in the Congo. Her friend, John Anderson, has recently seemed distant.

Chapter 19
FIGHTING GOSSIP
Y OUR sister is to blame for this," Lomax told Sondra. "She's chosen to leave me, and make me a laughing-stock. Well, now I wash my hands of the pair of you."

Sondra found her voice with an effort. "Where am I to go? Who do you think will want me when—when?" "When you're no longer living with a rich brother-in-law," he laughed for her. "Well, that's your business. You've been lucky to live here so long. I never wanted you—it was Flora who insisted that you stay. Please sign this acknowledgment."

Something cold seemed to be creeping round Sondra's heart. She wanted to laugh and push the check away; she wanted to tell this man that she could do without him and his charity, but she knew the folly of such an action. She had no money—nowhere to go. Lomax was probably right when he suggested that few people would want her when the truth was known.

Of course there was the story-book solution of going out and finding a job—but what sort of a job? What could she do? She felt as if she had come to the world's end, as she stood there staring blankly at her brother-in-law's grim face. No wonder Flora had hated him. Lomax said again, "I'm in a hurry—there's a lot to see to. Kindly sign this."

Sondra signed it; she felt as if she stood by looking coldly on at her other self slowly writing her name at the foot of the formal receipt which Lomax had drawn up. Twenty-five hundred dollars! She suddenly remembered that she owed John Anderson more than that amount.

Once or twice lately her conscience had stirred uneasily at the memory but she had always soothed it with the vague belief that some day she would be able to repay him. Some day! . . . some day in another existence then—certainly not in this.

Lomax pushed back his chair and rose. "You can stay till Friday if you like," he said bluntly, as if she was a servant in his employ whom he had dismissed. "That will give you time to look around; it's only Tuesday now."

Sondra turned dumbly away, and he said frantically: "Don't you want the check?" She took it up with apathetic fingers and walked out of the room. Up in her own room she stood staring out of the window.

"You can stay till Friday—that will give you time to look around," There was Beatrice, of course, and that month's holiday she had been invited to share, but would she?

"Darling, I'm so thankful—" Beatrice was not in the least deceived, but she pretended to be. "It would have been so frightful for you, wouldn't it, if it had been true? whatever would you have done? And where are you going as it is?" "I shall stay with friends, and then later on I shall be going with you, to Massachusetts."

"Darling, it's too sad—but you know we're not going after all! Mum's! out up rough about going north—she never was keen, and so the whole thing is off. I'm so frightfully sorry."

"You needn't mind on my account," Sondra said lightly. "I shall be able to accept another invitation now, one I meant to refuse. But I'm sorry for your sake—aren't you disappointed?"

"Well, not really," Beatrice always underlined her words when she was particularly indignant. (Copyright 1932 by Ruby M. Ayres.)

Bad news of Mark comes to Sondra in the next installment.

Weekly Prison Paper Passes 45th Birthday

Stillwater, Minn. — "It is never too late to mend" is the motto of a Minnesota prison weekly newspaper which observes its forty-fifth birthday this year.

"The Green Arrow" is the work of inmates of the Minnesota state prison with editors who hold no editorial guild membership and reporters who never go out on assignments.

"Every week on time" is the proud boast of its staff who print it in their own shop inside the prison walls.

The purpose of this periodical, which refers to itself as "a home newspaper," is among other things "to aid in dispelling that prejudice which has ever been a bar sinister to a fallen man's self-redemption."

New York.—The stock market closed with a heavy tone today, but a sharp rally in the early afternoon carried many issues off about 2 to 3 points, but these losses were roughly out in half in a last hour rally. The list closed with a heavy tone. The turnover was about 3,000,000 shares.

The bond market was fairly firm, but shares received little support from commodity markets and traders showed an inclination to take quick profits. Bullish efforts to get a following in the motion picture and public utility issues met with limited success.

The list pushed up 1 to 3 points here and there in the morning, but reacted to show losses of 1 to 4 just after noon. American Telephone's regular dividend announcement brought a momentary rally. American Telephone advanced a point to 112.10 and recovered.

Losses of 3 and 4 points in Union Pacific and Case were partially regained. U. S. Steel lost about a point. Strong spots in the morning rise were Loews and American Water Works, up about 3. They resisted selling later fairly well. Westinghouse rose 2, and Bangor and Aroostook 3, to new 1932 highs.

Traders Cautious
Inasmuch as the list as a whole was halted as the up-coming business levels of last week in the rise early yesterday, traders were inclined to pursue a somewhat more cautious attitude for a time, pending more decisive indications that the rally was to be resumed. The rather erratic swings in the list both yesterday and today also tended to make for caution.

Foreign buying is said by brokers with foreign connections to have subsided during the past few days, although a little continues to flow in, coming even from such far lands as India. On the other hand, there has been no rush on the part of foreigners to take profits.

American Telephone's regular dividend had been rather consistently forecast in well informed quarters, so that it had been fairly well discounted in advance. Nevertheless, it was felt in some quarters that the full disbursement would not have been ordered without some decidedly hopeful indications.

Sharp business improvements in telephone disconnections in June and July reached record numbers, but were unofficially said to have diminished somewhat of late. Recent earnings nevertheless are understood to have been sharply under the $9 annual dividend rate.

Bullish efforts in the stock market received little support from midweek business statistics. The bidding up of the motion picture stocks was based on the fact that theatre attendance usually picks up sharply in the autumn, and in recent months the companies have drastically reduced their expenses. The weekly electric power production figures were about a standoff. While showing a slight decline from the previous week, the degree of reduction from last year remained unchanged at 13.1 per cent.

Wall Street Briefs

New York.—The New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads in a joint statement report that by cooperation by their respective managements they have been able to save $4,000,000 passenger train miles per annum by reducing their New York-Chicago service 34 per cent. The miles have been reduced 24,000,000 a year.

Due to further strength in scrap markets the "Iron Age" composite price for heavy melting steel increased this week to $22.20 a ton, the highest since early June and a gain of 40 cents a ton from the year's low of early July. The pig iron price declined to $13.64 a ton, the lowest since Aug. 1931, as a result of weakness in Philadelphia. Finished steel is unchanged at 1870 cents a pound.

Wall-st. statisticians estimate that Union Pacific's investments in New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Illinois Central and Chicago and Northwestern have increased to a value of approximately $14,000,000 from their 1932 low of $14,041,000.

Struggle to Save $5 Hog Is Lost

Fresh Run of 20,000 Forces Prices Off; Fall 5 to 15 Cents

Chicago.—The struggle to save the $5 hog was lost yesterday, but that fact did not become manifest until sellers with fairly well filled pens today faced an indifferent set of buyers whose orders were not pressing. Packers, who divided 4,000 hogs received on direct consignment, took no part in the opening market and shippers whose appetite for light hogs had worn its edge, were interested only in choice hogs at 10 cents lower quotations than prevailed Tuesday. State hogs to the number of 5,000, most of them packers and underweight lights, in conjunction with the fresh run of 20,000 created a surplus which forced prices off 5 to 15 cents.

Butchers averaging 230-250 lbs. were relatively best demand in a slow market and were saleable 5 to 10c lower at $4.25 to $4.50; while selected lights were sought at $4.75 to $4.85. Pigs and packing sows were at a standstill during the early forenoon.

Gradually expanding cattle receipts have not checked the rising tide of prices, especially in the case of choice steers. Repeated runs carrying a preponderance of fed steers have met with a broad bid, and the market for these animals is bullish on this class of goods today. Killing plants received only 100 head of bovine stock on direct billing and about 1,500 calves, which have sprung into favor, were available on the open market.

Aggregate supplies of sheep and lambs in the market circle during the first half of the current week are 30 per cent larger than for the initial period of last week, but fell far short of marketings during the same period in 1931. The limited extent of consumer buying did not warrant the maintenance of current levels, but holders asked firm prices. Three packing establishments reported 3,800 lambs received direct.

Wheat Prices Fall to Lowest Mark in 2 Weeks

Estimate North American Surplus in Excess of World Takings

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor
Chicago.—Wheat fell late today to the lowest prices in a fortnight.

Spotless selling of wheat accompanied the tumble. Stock market setbacks were an unsettling influence, together with indications that North America's estimated exportable surplus was in excess of the world's favorable takings.

Reactions which later developed from wheat price advances were coincident with a dearth of new speculative buying. Bears meanwhile made much of word that European wheat import requirements were tentatively put at 517,000,000 bushels. This would be a decrease of 64,000,000 bushels from last year's takings. Gossip that plans for a commodities credit corporation would be allowed to lapse acted also as wheat market drag.

Increased selling carried wheat back at times to where all gains were completely wiped out. Favorable reports on Canadian crop progress were current. Conditions placed the Alberta wheat crop at 85 per cent, Saskatchewan 72 per cent and Manitoba 67 per cent, against 69 per cent, 67 per cent and 59 per cent, respectively, at this time last year. Corn and oats were governed largely by the action of wheat.

Provisions showed firmness despite downturns of hog values. Corn held within relatively narrow limits, and followed wheat to some extent. Scattered liquidation was in evidence in September contracts which went to a slightly wider discount as compared with December. Country offerings of corn were only fair volume. Heavy rains were reported in parts of Oklahoma. The Kansas weekly crop report indicated considerable damage in the western part of that state, owing to dry and hot weather.

MOBILE NATURE'S GALLERY SHOP

HOMING PIGEONS, unless trained for night flying, roost at night wherever darkness overtakes them. The birds trained by the French for secret night work were kept in darkened rooms from the moment of hatching and were fed by the light of red lamps. When they learned to fly, they underwent systematic training of homing to a red light. Although results were far from satisfactory, the American army was preparing to teach night flying to some of its pigeons at the time the armistice came.
